

Popular Television Show Highlights Local Artisan Manufacturer

Ontario, CA, March 5, 2017—A19 Lighting might be kin to manufacturers, but as owner Cinnamon Alvarez puts it: “We are artisans by trade.” Recently featured in the popular television series “How It’s Made,” the process for each piece from start to finish requires hands-on care and attention.

“The best part about what we do is that every piece is personal,” said Alvarez. “Because we make the fixtures by hand, no two look exactly alike.” The process requires her team to utilize tools to trim and cut the [clay], and then they paint with brushes and sponges to finish the unique designs. This proactive process ensures that each piece is carefully crafted and confirmed for excellence.

A19 has over 1000 unique designs for clients to choose from. Their customers and designers keep coming back because they know that Alvarez and her team can match any colors they might dream up to complete the perfect ambiance for their home or office. In less than a week, A19 can deliver personal fixtures to clients

Since 1998, A19 has been fueled by inspiration. When customers purchase an A19 product, they get to share in the passion and inspiration of the company’s artists. A19 sees its products as pieces of art, rather than just lighting fixtures. For twenty years, A19 has gone to great lengths to ensure that each ceramic and glass lighting fixture carries its distinct signature of style and quality. A19 successfully blends innovative vision with the traditions of gifted artisans.
